ENCOURAGING WORDS

The Four Accounts

Sometimes people wonder why we have four different accounts of the life of Jesus in the four gospels. Why did God not simply reveal in one book all that Jesus did? Well, one of the reasons is that each of the gospels has a different audience and a different purpose as they write.

Luke's audience was Theophilus, whom he addresses as "most excellent." This was a special term used in the first century to give honor to nobility within the government. Why did Luke write this gospel? Read his opening words.

"Many have undertaken to draw up an account of the things that have been fulfilled among us, just as they were handed down to us by those who from the first were eyewitnesses and servants of the Word. With this in mind, since I myself have carefully investigated everything from the beginning, I too decided to write an orderly account for you, most excellent Theophilus, so that you may know the certainty of the things you have been taught." Luke 1:1-4

Why is John so different from the other gospel accounts? Because his purpose is not to focus on chronology, but he selects seven miracles to accomplish his purpose. "Jesus performed many other signs in the presence of His disciples, which are not recorded in this book. ³¹ But these are written that you may believe that Jesus is the Messiah, the Son of God, and that by believing you may have life in His name." John 20:30-31

Now focus on John's opening paragraph. There is no mention of Jesus' birth, the shepherds, the wise men or Herod. John wanted his readers to be fully convinced that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God.

John then goes back to the beginning, to the time before there was the heavens and the earth. Jesus was there. The Word was there; He was with God (Deity), and the Word was Deity. The rest of this book is designed to magnify the Word so that everyone might be fully convinced that Jesus is God.

As you read your Bible, read it slowly. Notice its beauty, its structure, and its purpose. Look carefully at every book, every chapter, every paragraph, every sentence, every word! There are heavenly treasures in each!
