ENCOURAGING WORDS

The True Value of Things

Buy low, sell high is the simplest explanation of commerce and the market economy. Who among you has invested money in collectibles? In younger days it was baseball cards and coin collections, after which came NFL trading cards – I understand that there are a few in pristine condition that might bring substantial sums, but those are held by professional collectors, not your average sports fan. Then there are those stuffed animals known as Beanie Babies, which were immensely popular as collectible items. Some people paid outrageous sums of money to buy some of the more limited-edition critters, thinking they will be worth more in the future and would bring a profit. The problem was that Beanie Baby collection turned out to be simply a fad and the collectibles market for stuffed toys collapsed. There are thousands of people today who are holding onto hundreds of beanie babies apiece, hoping one day there will once more be a market for them. My mother-in-law was a collector, and her collection was passed on to Anne at her passing. We gave most away as small stuffed animals, but I must admit holding onto the English bulldog!

The value of worldly things goes up and down, but the truth of God, on the other hand, never goes diminishes in value. When one commits their life to the truth, holds on to the truth, he or she will gain with it wisdom, instruction, and understanding – these are the things that are truly valuable!

The truth on the other hand, never goes down in value. When one buys the truth and holds on to the truth, he or she naturally gains in wisdom, instruction and understanding. These are the things that are truly valuable!

Buy the truth, and sell it not; also wisdom, and instruction, and understanding. Prov. 23:23
